Do you have the skills necessary to be a certified court interpreter?

1. Possess educated, native-like mastery of both English and a second language;
2. Display wide general knowledge, typical of what a minimum of two years of general education at a college or university would provide; and
3. Perform the three major types of court interpreting: sight, consecutive and simultaneous.

If numbers 1 & 2 describe you, and you are willing to develop the skills for number 3, court interpreting may be for you.

Certification process

What materials are used for training and testing?

Illinois belongs to the Council of Language Access Coordinators through the National Center for State Courts (NCSC). Our program is based on their model and uses their recommended practices and exams.

Will the AOIC offer reciprocity?

Yes, Illinois accepts completion of most states' orientation and proof of NCSC exam scores, and proof of federal certification. As long as all other certification requirements are met, such candidates will be listed on the Registry. Sign language and deaf interpreters must attend the two-day orientation and submit proof of Advanced or Master's level licensure with the Illinois Deaf and Hard of Hearing Commission to be listed on the Registry. Sign language and deaf interpreters are not tested by the AOIC.

Do I have to go through all three phases if I teach language, already interpret, and took several years of language training?

Yes, everyone working toward certification must participate in all three phases.

How much work is there?

It varies by where you are located, where you are willing to travel and your language set. The need for interpreters across the state is high, but funding to hire interpreters varies by county. As an independent contractor, the circuit county courts contact interpreters on an "as needed" basis.

REGISTRATION OPENS NOVEMBER 8, 2016.
